Hello, faculty,

We’re back with a themed issue to celebrate Barnard’s new initiative, Barnard Engages New York: Collaborative Partnerships to Promote Sustainable Change, which has as its co-PIs Professor Premilla Nadasen and Professor Nara Milanich, both in the History Department. If you’ve been thinking about developing a new public-facing initiative, particularly around immigration, labor rights, or criminal justice, Barnard Engages could be a great opportunity. We have details on the next page, in case you missed the announcement, so read on!

To continue our focus on public engagement, our Featured Funder segment takes a look at “Public Engagement Initiatives.” For Sage Advice we tackle “What Makes a Good Community Partnership Proposal?”

When you’re done with those, take a look at News for updates on upcoming blackout periods for Research.gov.

After that, be sure to check out upcoming grant opportunities. There are some good ones coming up, like the Rome Prize by the American Academy in Rome and Research Leave Fellowships by the American Association of University Women.

If you want to see those deadlines throughout the year, go to the Grants Calendar and Fellowship Calendar on the External Grant Opportunities page on the Barnard website. We’re constantly updating it and you can download it as an excel document.

The next internal grant deadline is November 25th. See Barnard’s website here for more information.

As always, if you need assistance finding grants or beginning an application, please feel free to send an email to me or any of the other members of the Institutional Funding and Sponsored Research team.

Community Engagement Initiatives

Today’s Featured Funder is really a group of funders with a shared interest in community engagement initiatives. If you’ve ever wanted to develop a public-facing project, this profile is for you.

I’m sure you’ve all heard the good news about our first one: Barnard! Barnard was recently awarded a major grant by the Mellon Foundation to start Barnard Engages New York: Collaborative Partnerships to Promote Sustainable Change. Barnard Engages recently sent out a Request for Proposals (RFP) to full-time faculty developing courses based in the humanities that involve “three- to five-year partnerships with New York non-profit institutions, whose missions connect to the following topics: Immigration and immigrant rights and safety; poverty and associated issues of healthy, food insecurity, and criminal justice; the human rights of laborers.” For help thinking about course design, see Jennifer Rosales at the Center for Engaged Pedagogy. For more information see the Request for Proposals.

Pre-proposals are due October 30, 2019 to barnardengages@barnard.edu.

For start-up grants, try Humanities New York. “The mission of Humanities New York is to strengthen civil society and the bonds of community, using the humanities to foster engaged inquiry and dialogue around social and cultural concerns.” Humanities New York has a few different grants.

“Vision Grants” are planning grants for $500-$1,500 for “expenses such as travel, consultant fees, and participant stipends.” Organizations must provide a 1:1 match. Deadline: Rolling

“Action Grants” offer $1500-$5000 for the implementation of public-facing projects, “including workshops, roundtables, panel discussions, humanities-infused performances, exhibits, podcasts, and interactive digital platforms.” Organizations must provide 1:1 matching. Deadline: April 1, 2020 for projects starting July 1st, 2020 or later.

On a larger scale, the National Endowment for the Humanities offers a range of grants.

Public Humanities Projects: “support projects in three categories: Exhibitions (permanent, temporary, or traveling); interpretive programs at Historic Places; and Humanities Discussions related to the 250th anniversary of the nation’s founding.” Planning Grants: Up to $75K. Implementation: up to $400k. Deadline: January 15, 2020.

Public Scholar Program: up to $5k/month in support of “the creation of well-researched books in the humanities intended to reach a broad readership.” Deadline: February 5, 2020.

The Whiting Foundation’s Public Engagement Programs fund “ambitious, often collaborative projects to infuse into public life the richness, profundity, and nuance that give the humanities their lasting value.”

Public Engagement Seed Fellowship: up to $10k. “Nominees should also have articulated specific short-term next steps required to advance the project and understand the resources required to complete them.” Deadline: TBA.

Public Engagement Fellowship: $50k is for public-facing projects far enough along in development or execution that the nominee can present compelling, specific evidence that they will successfully engage the intended public. Deadline: TBA.

The J.M Kaplan Fund supports “civil liberties, human rights, the arts, and the conservation and enhancement of the built and natural worlds.” They have two main grants.

Furthermore Grants: $5k in support publication of nonfiction books that concern the arts, history, and the natural and built environment. Deadline: March 1

Innovation Prize provides $150k over three years in “catalytic funding for projects in their early stages of development” in the field of social innovation. Deadline: TBA.
Sage Advice for Competitive Proposals

What Makes a Good Community Partnership Proposal?

The news about Barnard Engages is all very exciting and exactly the sort of opportunity that we like to flag for you, here at Institutional Funding and Sponsored Research. As you’ve probably noticed, though, it’s only one opportunity to partner with community organizations among a growing number. Grants for community partnerships are taking over increasingly posh addresses in funding real estate.

Given that, I thought that today would be a good time to talk about how to craft a persuasive proposal for working with the public. So what makes a good community partnership proposal?

Luckily, this is one of the few questions that can be answered nearly entirely by reference to first principles: Your project has to answer genuine needs for your partner organization and for you own. Let’s unpack this.

- You have to know what the needs of your partner organization are, which means you have to have an ongoing relationship with them. Almost no one wants to fund a community engagement project where the proposal writer clearly doesn’t have a strong relationship with the organization. What if that organization says ‘no’ to your great idea?

- Your project has to fit with the priorities and capacities of your partner organization. Non-profits can often be understaffed, underfunded, and overburdened with projects. The single worst thing you can do is parachute in with a project, drop it on an organization, and leave.

- Your partner organization should be better off after the project than before you started. This doesn’t have to mean financially. You can leave your partner organizations with new skills, volunteers, resources, or connections. Don’t ask for them to commit time and resources to your project without giving them anything in return.

- You should be sensitive to power differentials and biases vis-à-vis your collaborators. Be especially sensitive if you are the one controlling funding.

- You and your partner have to define your public audience. Who are you trying to reach? Students? The elderly? The arts community? The prison population? Decide and tailor your project accordingly.

- You and your partner have to understand what your funder means by “community” and “public.” There are funders who have absolutely no interest in giving money to Barnard College to reach its own students, but might well give to a Barnard program if it were working with, say, prisons.

- Community engagement has to make sense for you or your organization’s mission. It might be a fine, morally upstanding thing to have your students volunteer at a soup kitchen, but if it isn’t meaningfully enhancing their experience of your class on Milton it’s not a good project.

- You should have a strong answer for how your project creates social change, if applicable. This point depends on the detail of your funder, but funders are often extremely fond of metrics when assessing impact. So have a plan to count attendance, track page views, gather feedback, and otherwise assess the impact of what you propose.

- You partnership should be sustained and optimally scalable. This isn’t always the case, but funders often like seeing that partnerships are ongoing and can be replicated. Check the details of your grant.

The key point is that the best community partnerships are bottom-up, not top-down.
FROM THE NSF

Alert: FastLane and Research.gov will be unavailable from Friday, November 8 at 8:00 PM EST until Tuesday, November 12 at 6:00 AM EST

“The National Science Foundation (NSF) is migrating its business applications to a modern and flexible platform from November 8 at 8:00 PM EST through November 12 at 6:00 AM EST. As part of this effort, NSF will also upgrade the alpha-numeric character set used by the FastLane and Research.gov systems to correct text errors, such as special characters displaying as question marks ("?"") in proposals and project reports. This migration has been scheduled over the Veteran’s Day holiday weekend to minimize the impact of the systems downtime on the research community and NSF staff.

“During this outage, there will be no access to these websites, proposals cannot be submitted in FastLane or Research.gov, and project reports and cash requests cannot be submitted in Research.gov. However, previously saved information and uploaded documents in FastLane and Research.gov, including in-progress proposals and project reports, will be accessible after the migration is completed.”

New “All About Grants” Podcast on Letters of Support

Posted on September 23, 2019 by NIH Staff

“Letters of support are a valuable part of your grant application. They provide an opportunity for you to document the commitment and support of your institution and collaborators, the availability of required resources, and more.

In this next installment of the NIH’s All About Grants podcast series, Cathleen Cooper, Ph.D., who directs the NIH’s Center for Scientific Review’s Division of Receipt and Referral, joins us to talk all about letters of support (MP3 / Transcript). Hear what information should be included in these letters, what should not, how they differ from other letters submitted as part of an application, and more. “ <<more>>

Final Report on Reducing Administrative Burdens Associated with Research Involving Laboratory Animals

Posted on September 25, 2019 by Michael Lauer

“Experts from the USDA, the FDA, and the NIH undertook much collaborative, thoughtful, and rigorous deliberation to get us to this point. ...Their final report reflects, incorporates, and analyzes diverse perspectives of more than 1,300 researchers, animal welfare advocacy organizations, scientific professional societies, members of the public, and others who commented on an earlier draft version. Investigators, generally speaking, supported the report’s recommendations to reduce various administrative hurdles. But, importantly, they were also balanced with concerns raised by animal welfare organizations and the public to not lessen requirements in such a way that adversely effects the humane care and use of laboratory animals.” <<more>>

When in Doubt, Reach Out

Posted October 2, 2019 by NIH Staff

“The NIH Grants & Funding website has a wealth of information to help applicants and grant recipients navigate application submission and grant administration requirements. When you can’t find what you need online, don’t hesitate to reach out to NIH staff. Often, the best folks to talk to will be in one of the NIH institutes or Centers. Our Contacting Staff at the NIH Institutes and Centers page can help you understand the roles of NIH staff and help you contact the right...
“Research Topic Contributes to Persistent Gap In NIH Research Grants to Black Scientists”
Posted on October 9, 2019 by NIH Staff

“The study identified disparate outcomes between black and white scientists at three decision points: selection for discussion, impact score assigned by the review panel and research topic choice, a previously unstudied factor. Reviewers in study sections, which are composed of subject matter experts recruited from the scientific community, showed a preference for research topics that tend to have methodologies that are highly controlled with very precise outcomes.

Black applicants were more likely than white applicants to propose research topics that receive awards at a lower rate, such as community or population-level research. Research topics with the lowest success rates included health disparities research and patient-focused interventions. Importantly, white researchers also experienced lower award rates in these topic areas, although less so than black researchers.

Despite significant efforts by NIH to close this funding gap first identified in 2011, it continues to persist. This new research identifies opportunities for interventions that could bolster NIH’s scientific workforce diversity efforts underway, such as the Diversity Program Consortium and the MOSAIC program.”

“The U.S. National Institutes of Health (NIH) on 1 October announced the winners of an annual crop of prestigious “high risk, high reward” (HRHR) awards. The plum awards provide generous, multiyear funding to a select group of scientists—101 this year—doing outside-the-box research that might not survive standard peer review. But in past years, the awards have been scrutinized because of the paucity of women among awardees.

For women, this year’s harvest was a mixed bag. For three of the four types of HRHR awards, women won in numbers that met or exceeded their representation in the applicant pool. However, that representation was meager: Eighteen percent to 38% of the applicants for these four awards were women, although women have earned more than 50% of U.S. Ph.D.s in biological sciences in every year since 2008. What’s more, in the award that is arguably best positioned to help women at a critical time in their career—the Early Independence Award (EIA), which allows awardees to skip a postdoc and start an independent lab immediately after a Ph.D.—women constitute 38% of applicants but only 25% of awardees. “I don’t see why consistently fewer women should make it through than apply,” says Monica Mugnier, a molecular parasitologist at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland, who won an EIA in 2016.”

“Grad Student Unions Dealt Blow as Proposed New Rule Says Students Aren’t ‘Employees’” from Science Magazine. Posted September 20, 2019

“Graduate students are not “employees” with a right to unionize, according to a rule proposed today by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), an agency that’s tasked with enforcing U.S.
labor laws. If implemented, the rule would undercut a recent wave of grad student unionization efforts at private U.S. universities.”

“The 25 September report by the Office of Inspector General (OIG) of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), NIH’s parent agency, follows a 2008 OIG analysis that found NIH was not collecting adequate data on financial conflicts, such as payments from drug companies for consulting or royalties from patents. The report helped prompt HHS to tighten its reporting rules, which now require investigators to tell their institution about all conflicts related to their institutional duties. The institutions then tell NIH about those that could bias an NIH-funded research project and explain how the conflict will be managed.

A decade on, NIH’s improved tracking system allows a count for the first time. OIG found that in 2018, 202 of 2064 grantee institutions reported any financial conflicts of interests. A total of 1668 unique grants had at least one conflict. In total, 3978 separate “significant financial interests” were reported, because grants can have more than one investigator, and each investigator can have several types of conflicts.”

Grant Opportunities

GENERAL INTERESTS AND CROSS-DISCIPLINARY

American Academy in Rome
Rome Prize
Deadline: November 1, 2019
“For over a century the American Academy in Rome has awarded the Rome Prize to support innovative and cross-disciplinary work in the arts and humanities. Each year, the prize is awarded to about thirty artists and scholars who represent the highest standard of excellence and who are in the early or middle stages of their careers.”

American Association of University Women
Postdoctoral Research Leave Fellowship
Deadline: November 1, 2019
“The primary purpose of the Postdoctoral Research Leave Fellowship is to increase the number of women in tenure-track faculty positions and to promote equity for women in higher education. This fellowship is designed to assist the candidate in obtaining tenure and further promotions by enabling her to spend a year pursuing independent research.”

American Association of University Women (AAUW), Summer/Short-Term Research Publication Grants
Deadline: November 1, 2019
"Summer/Short-Term Research Publication Grants provide support to scholars to prepare research manuscripts for publication and to independent researchers to prepare research for publication. Preference will be given to applicants whose work supports the vision of AAUW: to break through educational and economic barriers so that all women have a fair chance.”

Princeton University
Laurence S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships
Deadline: November 4, 2019
“Fellows devote an academic year in residence at Princeton to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines provided their research plans qualify. In recent years fellows have been drawn from fields including philosophy, political theory, literature, history, classics, economics and law, but this list is not meant to be exhaustive. Fellows are expected to reside in or around
Grants and Fellowship Opportunities (cont’d)

Princeton and to be active contributors to the intellectual life of the Center. This includes participating in a weekly seminar attended by fellows and Center faculty to discuss work in progress and in various other seminars, colloquia and lectures sponsored by the Center. Fellows enjoy access to Firestone Library and to a wide range of activities throughout the University.” <<more>>

The Huntington Library Fellowships
Deadline: November 15, 2019
“The Huntington Library awards over 150 research fellowships annually. Recipients of all fellowships are expected to be in continuous residence at The Huntington and to participate in, and make a contribution to, its intellectual life. “ <<more>>

Fritz Thyssen Foundation Conference Grants
Deadline: November 30, 2019
“The Fritz Thyssen Foundation supports scholarly events, in particular national and international conferences with the aim of facilitating the discussion and analysis of specific scholarly questions as well as fostering cooperation and networking of scholars working in the same field or on interdisciplinary topics.” <<more>>

ARTS AND HUMANITIES

Brown University
George A. and Biza Gardner Howard Foundation Fellowships
Deadline: November 1, 2019
Howard Fellowships are intended primarily to provide artists, scholars, and writers with time to complete their work. Fellowships will be awarded for 2020-2021 in the fields Fiction, Poetry, and Playwriting and Theatre Studies. <<more>>

Harvard University
Loeb Classical Library Fellowship
Deadline: November 1, 2019
“The Loeb Classical Library Foundation awards fellowships to qualified scholars to support research, publication, and other projects in the area of classical studies. Fellowships will normally range from $1,000 to $35,000.” <<more>>

NYPL
Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture Scholars-in-Residence
Deadline: November 1, 2019
“The Schomburg Center Scholars-in-Residence Program offers long-term and short-term fellowships to support scholars and writers working on projects that would benefit from access to the Center’s extensive resources for the study of African diasporic history, politics, literature, and culture. The Schomburg Center is a world-renowned repository of sources on every facet of the African diasporic experience, with extensive holdings including numerous unique manuscript and archival collections as well as a comprehensive range of publications, photographs, films, audio recordings, and visual art.” <<more>>

Society for Classical Studies
Thesaurus Linguae Latinae Fellowship
Deadline: November 8, 2019
“The Society for Classical Studies invites applications for a one-year Fellowship, tenable from July 2020 through June 2021, will allow an American scholar to conduct lexicographical research at the Thesaurus Linguae Latinae (TLL) Institute in Munich. Fellows at the TLL develop a broadened perspective of the range and complexity of the Latin language and culture from the classical period through the early Middle Ages, contribute signed articles to the Thesaurus, have the opportunity to participate in a collaborative international research project in a collegial environment, and work with senior scholars in the field of Latin lexicography.” <<more>>

The M.C. Lang Fellowship in Book History, Bibliography
Deadline: December 2, 2019

Return to table of contents
“The M. C. Lang Fellowship in Book History, Bibliography, and Humanities Teaching with Historical Sources is a two-year program designed to animate humanities teaching and equip educators (both library/curatorial staff and tenured or tenure-track faculty) to enlarge their students’ historical sensibilities through bibliographically informed instruction with original historical sources. Open to faculty and librarians at liberal arts colleges and small universities in the United States, this fellowship program will teach teachers how to discern and convey the human presences in original textual artifacts, to inculcate wonder in their students through guided contact with original textual artifacts.”

Creative Arts

Networks of Ensembles
Theatre Exchange Grants
Deadline: November 20, 2019
“Exchange Grants must address one of these two goals: (A) Artistic or technical/production exploration. Builds on a prior relationship in order to go deeper into a technique or methodology, follow a mutual interest, build a shared work, present a performance, etc. Performance tours are not a required element of these grants, although they may be included as part of the exchange. (B) Administrative development/exchange. Deepens existing relationships by exploring practices unique to the operation or management of an ensemble, such as (but not limited to): approaches to shared or rotating leadership, training in consensus decision-making, use of non-traditional structures, etc. Exchange Grants are designed to allow lead applicants and partners to take financial risks, to explore something beyond what they are already doing, and/or to more fully capitalize collaborations.”

Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation
USArtists International
Deadline: December 1, 2019
“USArtists International supports performances by U.S. artists at important cultural festivals and arts marketplaces around the globe. Committed to the presence of U.S. based artists on world stages, USArtists International provides grants to ensembles and individual performers in dance, music and theatre invited to perform at significant international festivals and performing arts markets.”

Social Sciences

Institute for Advanced Study School of Social Science
Deadline: November 1, 2019
Modern science and the modern state are inextricable and co-emergent. Indeed, the rise of the state form has been accomplished through the ways of knowing and extracting that scientific analysis makes possible—including classification, hierarchization, quantification, and reductionism. But while the production of science and the formation of the state are relatively well studied, much remains to be understood about the relationships between the two—how states support, use, and regulate sciences, and how the sciences support the structure, function, and legitimacy of states.

Wenner-Grenn Foundation
Deadline: November 1, 2019
“The Wenner-Gren Foundation is committed to playing a leadership role in anthropology and works to help anthropologists advance anthropological knowledge, build sustainable careers, and amplify the impact of anthropology in the wider world. To that end, the foundation is inviting applications for its Post-PhD Research Grants program. Through the program, grants of up to $20,000 will be awarded in support of research that demonstrates a clear link to anthropological theory and debate and promises to make a solid contribution to advancing the field. The foundation has no preference for methodology, research location, or subfield and welcomes proposals that employ a comparative perspective, can generate an innovative approach or idea, and/or integrate two or more subfields.”

School for Advanced Research Residential Scholars
Deadline: November 4, 2019
“Resident scholar fellowships are awarded annually by the School for Advanced Research to up to six scholars who have completed their research and who need time to prepare manuscripts or dissertations on topics important to the understanding of humankind.”

Russel Sage Foundation Behavioral Economics Fellowship
Deadline: November 26, 2019
“The Russell Sage Foundation's program on the Future of Work supports innovative research on the causes and consequences of changes in the quality of jobs for less- and moderately-skilled workers and their families. We seek investigator-initiated research proposals that will broaden our understanding of the role of changes in employer practices, the nature of the labor market and public policies on the employment, earnings, and the quality of jobs of workers. We are especially interested in proposals that address important questions about the interplay of market and non-market forces in shaping the wellbeing of workers, today and in the future.”

Russel Sage Foundation Future of Work Fellowship
Deadline: November 26, 2019
“The Russell Sage Foundation's program on the Future of Work supports innovative research on the causes and consequences of changes in the quality of jobs for less- and moderately-skilled workers and their families. We seek investigator-initiated research proposals that will broaden our understanding of the role of changes in employer practices, the nature of the labor market and public policies on the employment, earnings, and the quality of jobs of workers. We are especially interested in proposals that address important questions about the interplay of market and non-market forces in shaping the wellbeing of workers, today and in the future.”

Russel Sage Foundation Race, Ethnicity, and Immigration Fellowship
Deadline: November 26, 2019
“The Russell Sage Foundation launched its program on Race, Ethnicity, and Immigration in the spring of 2015. This program seeks investigator-initiated research proposals on the social, economic, and political effects of the changing racial and ethnic composition of the U.S. population, including the transformation of communities and ideas about what it means to be American. We are especially interested in innovative research that examines the roles of race, ethnicity, nativity, and legal status in outcomes for immigrants, U.S.-born racial and ethnic minorities, and native-born whites.”

Education
National Council of Teachers in Mathematics Pre-K-6 Classroom Research Grants
Deadline: November 1, 2019
“The purpose of this grant is to support and encourage classroom-based research in precollege mathematics education in collaboration with college or university mathematics educators. For 2020-2021, grants with a maximum of $6,000 each will be awarded to mathematic educators or classroom teachers currently teaching mathematics at the grades Pr-K-6 level. The research must be a collaborative effort involving a college or university math educator (a mathematic education researcher or a teacher of mathematics learning, teaching or curriculum) and one or more grades Pre-K-6 teachers.”

National Academy of Education/Spencer Postdoctoral Fellowship
Deadline: November 20, 2019
“The National Academy of Education/Spencer Postdoctoral Fellowship Program supports 30 early career scholars working in critical areas of education research. These $70,000 fellowships support non-residential postdoctoral proposals that make significant scholarly contributions to the field of education. The program also develops the careers of its recipients through professional development activities involving National Academy of Education members.” <<more>>

Brady Education Foundation

Deadline: December 1, 2019

“The Foundation is currently accepting proposals focused on evaluating programs that have the potential of helping to close the opportunity and resulting achievement gaps between children living in under-resourced communities and/or from under-represented populations and other children.” <<more>>

LANGUAGE & AREA STUDIES

American-Scandinavian Foundation

Fellowships/Grants to Study in Scandinavia

Deadline: November 1, 2019

“The American-Scandinavian Foundation (ASF) offers fellowships (up to $23,000) and grants (up to $5,000) to individuals to pursue research, study or creative arts projects in one or more Scandinavian country for up to one year. Grants are considered suitable for post-graduate scholars, professionals, and candidates in the arts to carry out research or study visits of one to three months duration.” <<more>>

Henry Luce Foundation/American Council of Learned Societies Program in China Studies

Deadline: November 6, 2019

“The Henry Luce Foundation/ACLS Program in China Studies in its eighth year seeks to maintain the vitality of China Studies in North America through fellowships and grants designed primarily for scholars early in their careers. Studies on and in China have developed over the last 30 years in the United States and Canada into a robust field, but current conditions pose daunting problems, especially for scholars just before and just after the dissertation.” <<more>>

American Schools of Oriental Research

Mesopotamian Fellowships

Deadlines: November 7, 2019

“The Mesopotamian Fellowships provides support in the amount of $9,000 for a period research lasting three months to a year. $1,000 of this Fellowship amount will be allocated for registration and travel support to the 2019 or 2020 ASOR Annual Meeting, where the successful applicant will be expected to present a paper on his or her research. The Fellowship is primarily intended to support field research on ancient Mesopotamian culture carried out in the Middle East, but other projects such as travel to work on museum collections or archives related to ancient Mesopotamia will also be considered. The award may only be used for allowable direct expenses. Indirect and/or overhead expenses are not permitted.” <<more>>

Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation Research Fellowships in Buddhist Studies

Deadline: November 13, 2019

“Research fellowships offer support for research and writing in Buddhist studies for scholars who hold a PhD degree, with no restrictions on time from the PhD. These fellowships provide scholars time free from teaching and other responsibilities to devote full-time to research and writing on the project proposed. The fellowship period may last up to nine months, during which time no teaching, commissioned research on other topics, or administrative duties are allowed.” <<more>>

Asian Cultural Council

Individual Fellowship Program

Deadline: November 7, 2019

“The Individual Fellowship Program is open to individuals (or two collaborators) undertaking trips ranging from one to six months for research, study, or exploration. Dissertation research is also supported in this category with partial funding offered for up to one year.” <<more>>
STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics)

Scialog Initiative

Negative Emissions Working Group

Deadline for Nomination: November 1, 2019

“The underlying science needed to make negative emissions technologies globally scalable still requires major scientific breakthroughs. Such breakthroughs in Negative Emissions Science (NES) almost certainly will result from multidisciplinary input, including from chemistry, physics, materials science, biology, engineering, and geophysics. This Scialog will challenge early-career scientists in these and related fields to explore together how to advance fundamental science in the design of novel approaches for rapidly removing and utilizing or sequestering greenhouse gases.”

Scialog Initiative

Microbiome, Neurobiology and Disease Working Group

Deadline for Nomination: November 1, 2019

“A growing body of evidence shows that the gut microbiome affects the brain in both normal and disease states. This finding leads to a number of questions, among them what are the biochemical and biophysical steps that constitute the gut-brain axis? What are the signaling molecules that facilitate this communication and how do they work? Do changes to the microbiome initiate neurophysiological outcomes or are they lagging indicators of neurobiological events? This Scialog will bring together chemists, physicists, biologists and neurophysiologists to explore these and other issues with the goal of designing and launching innovative, cross-disciplinary studies with the potential to transform our understanding of this complex system.”

Scialog Initiative

Signatures of Life in the Universe Working Group

Deadline for Nomination: November 1, 2019

“To initiate a systematic survey for extraterrestrial life will require the careful definition of what chemical features to search for – the “signatures of life” – and the design and development of new, more sensitive tools to detect those chemical signatures. This Scialog will bring together early-career scientists from fields including earth and planetary science, chemistry and physics, astronomy and astrobiology, microbiology and biochemistry, and computer and data science to generate cutting edge projects to gain fundamental understanding of habitability of planets, detection of life beyond Earth, and life in extreme environments on Earth or in Earth’s distant past.”

Smithsonian Mpala Postdoctoral Fellowship

Deadline: November 1, 2019

“The purpose of the Mpala Postdoctoral Fellowship is to promote the study of biology, anthropology, geology, hydrology, material science, social science, soil science, or related areas. Projects must be carried out at the Smithsonian and Mpala Research Center.”

National Radio Astronomy Observatory Jansky Fellowship

Deadline: November 1, 2019

“As a Jansky Fellow, you will have a unique opportunity to contribute to and learn from the development and delivery of the largest and most capable radio telescopes in the world. Research that employs NRAO telescopes in multi-wavelength collaborations is encouraged. Candidates with interests in radio astronomy techniques, instrumentation, computation, and theory are encouraged to apply. Applicants should describe how their research or technical interests couple with NRAO telescopes or science. Appointments may be made at either of the NRAO sites: Socorro, NM, or Charlottesville, VA.”

Pershing Square Sohn Cancer Research Society Prize for Young Investigators in Research

Deadline: November 4, 2019

“The Pershing Square Sohn Prize for Young
Investigators in Cancer Research provides greater New York City area-based early career scientists the freedom to take risks and pursue their boldest research at a stage when traditional funding is lacking. Prize winners each receive $200,000 a year for up to three years, totaling $600,000. At least six prizes are awarded annually.”

Deadline Reminders

Below are grants that are, or are expected to be, due in the next six months. For a list of grant deadlines for the whole year, please see our Grants Calendar on the Barnard website.

NSF Advancing Informal STEM Learning

Deadline: November 6, 2019

“The Advancing Informal STEM Learning (AISL) program seeks to advance new approaches to and evidence-based understanding of the design and development of STEM learning opportunities for the public in informal environments; provide multiple pathways for broadening access to and engagement in STEM learning experiences; advance innovative research on and assessment of STEM learning in informal environments; and engage the public of all ages in learning STEM in informal environments.”

Department of the Interior Fish & Wildlife Services

Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Act Grants

Deadline: November 5, 2019

“The NMBCA program provides matching grants to Neotropical migratory bird conservation projects throughout the Western Hemisphere, with at least 75 percent of funding going to projects outside the United States. The competitive grants require that grant requests be matched by partner contributions at no less than a 3-to-1 ratio. The purpose of the Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Act is to provide financial support and foster international cooperation for initiatives that will perpetuate healthy bird populations.”

Blavatnik Family Foundation

US National Awards

Deadline: November 13, 2019

‘The Blavatnik National Awards for Young Scientists recognize the United States' most promising faculty-rank researchers in Life Sciences, Physical Sciences & Engineering, and Chemistry. One Blavatnik Laureate in each disciplinary category will receive $250,000 in unrestricted funds, and additional nominees will be recognized as Finalists.”
