

Grant Opportunities & News You Can Use

Welcome back, and welcome, new Barnard faculty,

This is the Grants Opportunities newsletter, produced by your very own Office of Institutional Funding and Sponsored Research. We are here to help you navigate the research funding maze, both governmental and foundational. Please reach out to us with questions, for brainstorming sessions, or to plan grant applications.

This newsletter features the Archaeological Institute of America, which has so many grant opportunities coming due on November 1 that it warranted some extra space.

Sage Advice tackles the problem of jargon and suggests other ways to make your proposals easier for a harried reviewer to read and digest in the short time she or he spends with it. The News section offers a link to the NSF’s guide on peer review, something we covered in our last Sage Advice, plus the NIH’s policies on “Inclusion Across the Lifespan.” Our profiles of opportunities, most due in late November, follow.

Beginning on page twelve, we list all deadlines through February, grouped by discipline.

Upcoming deadlines for INTERNAL grants are October 9th and November 20th. See the Barnard website, here, for more information.

For deadlines throughout the year, see the Grants Calendar, perpetually in progress, on the Barnard website at External Grant Opportunities. You can download a copy of your very own to sort, search, and filter at will.

If you would like assistance in finding grants for an upcoming project or would like to begin an application process, please contact Kari Steeves. As always, feel free to send any comments, requests, or suggestions to us here.

Featured Funder

Archaeological Institute of America

We listed the many opportunities The Archaeological Institute of America has coming due at the beginning of November in our last newsletter. In a first for me, I discovered they have a form on their website where one can post a new grant or fellowship. Handy if you're a funder.

The following are due November 1, 2018.

- "Julie Herzig Desnick Endowment Fund for Archaeological Field Surveys
The Herzig Desnick Fund will provide grants specifically dedicated to exploratory archaeological field surveys, especially for early stage work.
- Richard C. MacDonald Iliad Endowment for Archaeological Research
This grant will be awarded to projects that support research in regions that supply context to the study of Troy and generally help elucidate the Trojan War and its impact on ancient Mediterranean civilization. This can include but is not limited to Anatolia (modern Turkey), southeastern Europe, the Aegean and Crete during the third to first millennia B.C.E.
- Site Preservation Grant
The Site Preservation Program provides grants of up to $15,000 to support innovative projects that aid in the preservation of threatened archaeological sites.
- The Ellen and Charles Steinmetz Endowment Fund for Archaeology
The Steinmetz Fund will support innovative uses of technology in archaeological research.
- The Kathleen and David Boochever Endowment Fund for Fieldwork and Scientific Analyses
The Boochever Fund will support field and laboratory research.
- Harriet and Leon Pomerance Fellowship
To support a project relating to Aegean Bronze Age archaeology.
- Helen M. Woodruff Fellowship of the AIA and the American Academy in Rome
To support a Rome Prize Fellowship for the study of archaeology or classical studies every other year. (Next deadline will be in 2019)
- Olivia James Traveling Fellowship
For travel and study in Greece, Cyprus, the Aegean Islands, Sicily, southern Italy, Asia Minor, and Mesopotamia.
- The Archaeology of Portugal Fellowship
To support projects relating to the archaeology of Portugal
- Samuel H. Kress Grants for Research and Publication in Classical Art and Architecture
These grants fund publication preparation, or research leading to publication, undertaken by professional members of the AIA.
- The AIA Publication Subvention Program
This program offers subventions from the AIA's von Bothmer Publication Fund in support of new book-length publications in the field of Greek, Roman, and Etruscan archaeology and art history. "

Due at other times in the year:

DAI Fellowship for Study in Berlin

The AIA and the German Archaeological Institute (Deutsches Archäologisches Institut) offer reciprocal study fellowships. The program encourages and supports scholarship on various aspects of archaeology and promotes contact between North American and German archaeologists. Deadline: November 30, 2018

Anna C. & Oliver C. Colburn Fellowships

To support study at the American School of Classical Studies at Athens. Deadline: January 15, 2020

Sage Advice for Competitive Proposals

When reading about preparing strong grant proposals, you may have heard ad nauseam the chestnut to “avoid jargon” and similar advice to simplify language in proposals (and that goes double for acronyms). After all, grant applicants can count on a fairly high level of education among his or her readers but not on expertise in the specific topic or even field of study. The question is, how? This article from Physics Today on “Talking science with journalists” might shed some light. In it Jason Socrates Bardi and Catherine Meyers of the News and Media Services division of the American Institute of Physics in College Park, Maryland, give sage advice for talking to journalists that repurposes amazingly well for experts in any field seeking research funding.

They advise scientists to “make sure the most important thing you want to say is also the most interesting.” This is the art of boiling complex ideas and processes down to a fundamental level. “You might start with the importance of your work to solving societal problems or answering big-picture questions, then concisely tell your story—“we did X; we found Y; that means Z”—in language that a nonscientist would understand.” The authors “cannot emphasize enough how helpful brevity can be,” which is especially true for letters of inquiry or abstracts. You may have no further opportunity to persuade your reader. But, the authors caution scholars “not to dumb down your message so much that it loses all meaning.”

Bardi and Meyers, like others we’ve read, recommend visuals—“images of lasers, galaxies, or the microscopic scales on a butterfly’s wings,” which it’s true are eye-popping, but the same applies to data laid out in graphs rather than dense tables. Complex language is sometimes better traded out for something other than language—and they added a cartoon (above, by Carin Cain) to prove their point.

Some of the qualities Bardi and Meyers recommend for newsworthiness can also work for grant-worthiness. I would especially flag “being truly groundbreaking,” “Far-reaching implications,” “regulatory or policy implications,” and “mind-bending coolness.” Be sure to make a case that your research has one or all of these characteristics.

For entirely different reasons, they remind readers that “agencies like NSF and the National Institutes of Health specifically require researchers to do public outreach as part of the work they fund.” So don’t forget to include broader impacts in your proposal!

Check out the article for more nuance, but also for advice on press, because “studies have shown that media coverage and social media buzz can increase the number of citations for your article.” And you may actually need to learn how to handle tough interviews, your own institution’s press office, and the media onslaught when you win the Nobel Prize.

ADDED NSF Video - "The Art and Science of Reviewing Proposals"

"The National Science Foundation (NSF) is committed to ensuring a fair, competitive, and transparent merit review process. The reviews submitted by external peer reviewers are an important part of the decision-making process and a crucial source of feedback to Principal Investigators. NSF has developed a short reviewer orientation video that provides helpful tips for writing high quality reviews.

NSF encourages all reviewers to watch the orientation video, "The Art and Science of Reviewing Proposals," which can be accessed in FastLane through the Panelist Travel and Reimbursement page and the Proposal Review, Ad Hoc Reviewers page. You can also view the video directly at <https://tipsforreviewers.nsf.gov>. There is a link at the end of the video to additional resources, a list of helpful hints, and a short feedback survey."

GENERAL INTEREST AND CROSS DISCIPLINARY

Popular Culture Association, Endowment Travel Grants

Deadline: October 1, 2018

"The Endowment Fund of the Popular Culture Association was established in 1997 as a commitment to the long-term future of the study of popular culture. Individuals may apply for only one grant in any category per yearly cycle. Applying for more than one grant in a single cycle will disqualify the applicant. Applications will open around July 1, 2018 and will close on October 1, 2018. Every effort will be made to inform applicants of the status of their applications by early January, 2019. For each of the travel awards for presenting at the national conference, the grants will be able to be picked up at the conference." <<more>>

National Endowment for Democracy, Reagan-Fascell Democracy Fellowship

Deadline: October 15, 2018

"The Reagan-Fascell Democracy Fellows Program hosts democracy activists, scholars, and journalists for five-month fellowships, bringing fresh insights and perspectives to Washington, DC. The fellowship offers an important opportunity to explore new ideas in a comparative context, undertake individual research, and share best practices with one another." <<more>>

Network of Ensemble Theaters NET/TEN Exchange Grants

Deadline: September 18, 2018, and April 2, 2019

"Builds on a prior relationship or deepen an existing relationship, in order to go deeper into a technique or methodology, follow a mutual interest, build a shared work, present a performance, approaches to shared or rotating leadership, training in consensus decision-making, use of non-traditional structures, etc. Exchange Grants are designed to allow lead applicants and partners to take financial risks, to explore something beyond what they are already doing, and/or to more fully capitalize collaborations. Applications are to be written and submitted jointly by two or more partners." <<more>>

National Endowment for the Arts, Research: Art Works

Deadline: October 9, 2018

"Research: Art Works offers support for projects in two areas:

- Track One: Value and Impact. These are matching grants ranging from $10,000-$30,000 for research projects that aim to examine the value and/or impact of the arts in any topic area(s) by using data and methods appropriate to the proposed research questions. Projects relying primarily on experimental/quasi-experimental design methods should apply to Track Two.
- Track Two: Experimental and Quasi-Experimental Designs. These are matching grants ranging from $30,000-$100,000 for research projects that aim to test the causal or inferred-causal impact of the arts on individual or cohort outcomes by using experimental or quasi-experimental design methods appropriate to the proposed research questions. This Track is only for projects relying primarily on experimental or quasi-experimental research methods. Projects that do not use experimental or quasi-experimental research methods will be considered ineligible if submitted under this track." <<more>>

Institute for Advanced Studies, School of Historical Studies Membership

Deadline: October 15, 2018

"THE SCHOOL OF HISTORICAL STUDIES supports scholarship in all fields of historical research, but is concerned principally with the history of western, near eastern and Asian civilizations, with particular emphasis upon Greek and Roman civilization, the history of Europe (medieval, early modern, and modern), the Islamic world, East Asian studies, art history, the history of science and philosophy and modern international relations. The School also offers the Edward T. Cone Membership in Music Studies. Each year the School welcomes approximately forty Members selected on the basis of both external and internal review. Most

CLAGS, The Robert Giard Fellowship

Deadline: November 15, 2018

"An annual award named for Robert Giard, a portrait, landscape, and figure photographer whose work often focused on LGBTQ lives and issues, this award is presented to an emerging or mid-career artist, from any country, working in photography, photo-based media, or moving image, including experimental, narrative, or documentary forms of these media. The award now alternates annually between artists working with still image (photography) and those working with moving image (video or film). This year's award is for still images. This award will support the development or completion of a project, one that is new or continuing, that addresses issues of sexuality, gender, or LGBTQ identity. The Foundation is receptive to a variety of projects and approaches to these topics." <<more>>

Puffin Foundation West Activist Arts Grants

Deadline: Early determination application arrives by USPS before November 19, 2018

"A Call for Meaningful Art"

"We're interested in art projects that educate the public on topical issues that seek to enrich and inform the public on important subjects such as the environment, social justice, civil rights and other contemporary issues facing the country (and the planet), that other organizations might hesitate to fund. You may call this Activist Art. The Foundation also gives special consideration to communities that feel that their children are underserved by the arts. We are NOT driven by a classification of a school being a Title One School."

New York University Institute for the Study of the Ancient World Visiting Research Scholar Program

Deadline: Expected November 20, 2018

"ISAW's scope embraces research and graduate education in the history, archaeology, and culture of the entire Old World from late prehistoric times to the eighth century AD, including Asia and Africa. Projects of a theoretical or comparative nature relevant to this domain are also welcome.

Academic visitors at ISAW should be individuals of scholarly distinction or promise in any relevant field of ancient studies who will benefit from the stimulation of working in an environment with colleagues in other disciplines. Applicants with a history of interdisciplinary exchange are particularly welcome. They will be expected to be in residence at the Institute during the period for which they are appointed and to take part in the intellectual life of the community." <<more>>

Barry Amiel and Norman Melburn Trust Grants

Deadline: November 29, 2018

"The general objectives of the Trust are to advance public education, learning and knowledge in all aspects of

(a) the philosophy of Marxism

(b) the history of socialism, and

(c) the working class movement."

"In forthcoming rounds, the Trust will aim to ringfence 50% of funds for applications for projects with a strong focus on popular political education and on engagement with non-academic and non-activist audiences, especially those focused on reaching people and communities across the UK who are likely to face barriers to accessing education, learning and knowledge about the philosophy of Marxism, the history of socialism, the working class movement and other social movements seeking to bring about non-exploitative and egalitarian societies. These barriers could include educational, financial, geographical, or political cultural barriers."

Wilson Center, Cold War Research

Deadline: rolling

"CWIHP offers resources and support to scholars of all levels who are conducting archival research on the history of the Cold War. In addition to CWIHP's formal fellowships, the project accepts ad-hoc proposals and funding requests to support archival research.... Generally, CWIHP supports the following kinds of activities:

Translation and Transcription

If you have retrieved historical documents from non-US archives, and you would like to have them translated into English, CWIHP will translate and host them online for you. Scans or transcriptions of archival documents can be hosted online side-by-side with their English translations on the Wilson Center's Digital Archive. Write to CWIHP with a description or index of the documents you would like to have translated, and what you intend to do with them.

Document Acquisition and Duplication

If you are planning a trip to a non-US archive and need financial support to photocopy or scan materials during your trip, write to CWIHP with a short description of the collections you will be accessing. CWIHP regularly reimburses photocopy/scanning costs." <<more>>

EDUCATION

American Educational Research Association

Deadline: October 17, 2018

"With support from the National Science Foundation (NSF), the AERA Grants Program announces its Research Grants competition. The program seeks to stimulate research on U.S. education issues using data from the large--scale, national and international data sets supported by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), NSF, and other federal agencies, and to increase the number of education researchers using these data sets. The program supports research projects that are quantitative in nature, include the analysis of existing data from NCES, NSF or other federal agencies, and have U.S. education policy relevance." <<more>>

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Institute for Advanced Study, School of Social Science Membership

Deadline: November 1, 2018

"Each year, between 20 and 25 scholars are selected as Members in the School of Social Science.... Members are expected only to pursue their own research and participate in the seminars. The theme for 2019-20 is "Economy and Society" but applications outside the theme are also welcomed. An interdisciplinary dialogue will be fostered and applications are strongly encouraged from scholars across the social sciences, whether or not their research corresponds to the theme." <<more>>

Russell Sage Foundation, Computational Social Science

Deadline: November 30, 2018

"The Russell Sage Foundation's initiative on Computational Social Science (CSS) supports innovative social science research that brings new data and methods to bear on questions of interest in its core programs in Behavioral Economics, Future of Work, Race, Ethnicity and Immigration, and Social Inequality. Limited consideration will be given to questions that pertain to core methodologies, such as causal inference and innovations in data collection."

<<more>>

Russell Sage Foundation, Immigration and Immigrant Integration

Deadline: November 30, 2018

"The Russell Sage Foundation/Carnegie Corporation Initiative on Immigration and Immigrant Integration seeks to support innovative research on the effects of race, citizenship, legal status and politics, political culture and public policy on outcomes for immigrants and for the native-born of different racial and ethnic groups and generations. This initiative falls under RSF's Race, Ethnicity, and Immigration Program and represents a special area of interest within the core program, which continues to encourage proposals on a broader set of issues." <<more>>

Center for Advance study of Behavioral Science at Stanford University

Deadline: November 2, 2018

"In addition to scholars working in fields of the behavioral and social sciences, those in other areas will also be considered for fellowships if their work has human behavioral and social dimensions.... Fellows must reside during their fellowship term in a community within ten miles of the Center. CASBS partners with several entities to provide funding for some residential fellows whose research projects focus on certain topics. An applicant's statement of interest in one of these options does not bear on the CASBS fellowship selection committee's process, nor does it guarantee that an applicant will receive this particular fellowship in the event that they are awarded a CASBS fellowship." <<more>>

Society of Biological Psychiatry Travel Awards

Deadline: September 28, 2018

"The training of a new generation of psychiatric academicians is a major objective of the Society of Biological Psychiatry (SOBP). Participation in professional meetings, where new information is exchanged and contacts are made, can have a critical impact on the career of a developing basic and clinician-scientist. In recognition of the importance of academic exchange, SOBP annually selects distinguished Early Career Investigators from North American institutions to be a part of our Travel Fellowship Award program. Travel Awards recognize excellence in scholarly activity by junior researchers by providing the opportunity to attend the annual meeting and participate in special programming for the awardees. These awards are supported by the Society of Biological Psychiatry and in part by Elsevier, publisher of the Society's journals, Biological Psychiatry and Biological Psychiatry: Cognitive Neuroscience and Neuroimaging." <<more>>

Institute for Research on Innovation and Science (IRIS) Research Awards

Deadline: October 1, 2018

"Proposals submitted for IRIS Researcher Awards must emphasize the use of IRIS data in projects that address open issues in the study of science and technology and in science policy. Topics of particular interest include but will not be limited to: (1) new methods to estimate social and economic return on investment for funding from various sources (federal, philanthropic, industrial, and institutional); (2) studies about the relationship between research training, career outcomes and the downstream productivity of employers; (3) research on the relationship between different funding sources and mechanisms and the structure and outcomes of collaboration within and across campuses; (4) analyses of the distinctive contribution university research makes to regional economic development and resilience; and (5) examinations of the effects different funding sources and mechanisms have on research teams and the productivity and efficiency of the academic research enterprise as a whole." <<more>>

Institute for Advanced Study School of Natural Sciences Membership

Deadline: November 15, 2018 (IAS encourages applicants to submit by October 15)

"Founded in 1973, the School of Social Science takes as its mission the analysis of contemporary societies and social change. It is devoted to a pluralistic and critical approach to social research, from a multidisciplinary and international perspective.... To facilitate scientific engagement among the visiting scholars, the School defines a theme for each year. Approximately one half of Members selected pursue work related to it and contribute to a corresponding seminar.... The School of Natural Sciences will have several openings for members in theoretical physics, astrophysics, and biology for the academic year 2019-2020. The positions are at a postdoctoral or higher level in the areas of astrophysics, theoretical biology, cosmology, mathematical physics, quantum field theory, particle

Society for the Teaching of Psychology, Scholarship of Teaching and Learning (SoTL) Research Grants

Deadline: November 2, 2018

"Research projects in any phase of development are eligible for funding (e.g., materials design, data collection, manuscript writing). However, the proposed project must have a high probability of producing a product that will be presented and/or published in a peer-reviewed outlet in a timely manner. Proposals will be evaluated on the degree to which proposal fits STP's description of the SoTL. Proposals that align with the STP President's preferred themes, will be given top priority. The 2019 themes are:

1. Finding ways to improve learning outcomes related to best practices in undergraduate research.
2. Strengthening the teaching of psychological science at the high school level." <<more>>

Space Telescope Science Institute, Hubble Fellowship Program

Deadline: November 1, 2018

"The NASA Hubble Fellowship Program (NHFP) supports outstanding postdoctoral scientists to pursue independent research in any area of NASA Astrophysics, using theory, observation, experimentation, or instrumental development. National Science Foundation Integrated Earth Systems

Deadline: November 14, 2018

"The Earth consists of a variety of complex systems that are variable over space and time, and respond to a wide range of perturbations. The goal of the Integrated Earth Systems (IES) program is to investigate the interplay among the continental, terrestrial, and interior systems of the planet. The program provides an opportunity for collaborative, multidisciplinary research into the operation, dynamics, and complexity of Earth systems that encompass the core of the Earth through the surface. Innovative projects that explore new research directions beyond those typically considered by core programs of the Division of Earth Sciences (EAR) are encouraged. Investigations may include all or part of the continental, terrestrial and deep Earth at all temporal and spatial scales. IES will support topics that include (but are not limited to) continental systems; terrestrial or surficial Earth systems including physical, chemical, and biotic dimensions; linkages among tectonics, climate, and landscape evolution; the coupling of the Earth's climate, depositional and biotic systems; and global cycles that involve core and mantle processes." <<more>>

Deadline: November 15, 2018, and March 15, 2019

"Computational neuroscience provides a theoretical foundation and a rich set of technical approaches for understanding complex neurobiological systems, building on the theory, methods, and findings of computer science, neuroscience, and numerous other disciplines. Through the CRCNS program, the National Science Foundation (NSF), the National Institutes of Health (NIH), the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research (Bundesministerium für Bildung und Forschung, BMBF), the French National Research Agency (Agence Nationale de la Recherche, ANR), the United States-Israel Binational Science Foundation (BSF), Japan's National Institute of Information and Communications Technology (NICT), and the State Research Agency (Agencia Estatal de Investigación, AEI) and National Institute of Health Carlos III (Instituto de Salud Carlos III, ISCIII), both of Spain, support collaborative activities that will advance the understanding of nervous system structure and function, mechanisms underlying nervous system disorders, and computational strategies used by the nervous system. Two classes of proposals will be considered in response to this solicitation: Research Proposals describing collaborative research projects, and Data Sharing Proposals to enable sharing of data and other resources."

U.S.-Israel Binational Science Foundation Regular Program

Deadline: November 20, 2018

"In even calendar years (2018, 2020, etc.) the areas are:

- Chemistry
- Computer Sciences
- Earth, Ocean and Atmospheric Sciences (Starting 2018 "physical oceanography" and "aquatic geochemistry" are part of this section)

- Economics
- Energy Research
- Environmental Research (Air, Water and/or Soil)
- Materials Research
- Mathematical Sciences
- Physics
- Sociology & Anthropology
- Psychology (excluding Psychobiology)

In odd calendar years (2019, 2021, etc) the BSF supports research projects in the following broad areas:

- Biomedical Engineering
- Health Sciences
- Life Sciences (Starting from 2017, inc Ecology; note also that the sub-areas of Ecology were redefined and can be found at the end of this document)
- Psychobiology

Cooperative research is a fundamental requirement for the BSF and is viewed by the Foundation as active collaboration between Israeli and American scientists. A joint research program must be presented in the form of a single, coordinated application, in which the roles and tasks of the respective partners are clearly defined. Each application should have at least two principal investigators (but not more than six), one from an Israeli institution and one from a U.S. institution." <<more>>

National Science Foundation Division of Physics: Investigator-Initiated Research Projects (PHY)

Deadline: November 28, 2018

"The Division of Physics (PHY) supports physics research and the preparation of future scientists in the nation's colleges and universities across a broad range of physics disciplines that span scales of space and time from the largest to the smallest and the oldest to the youngest. The Division is comprised of disciplinary programs covering experimental and theoretical research in the following major subfields of physics: Atomic, Molecular and Optical Physics; Computational Physics; Elementary Particle Physics; Gravitational Physics; Integrative Activities in Physics; Nuclear

Physics; Particle Astrophysics; Physics of Living Systems; Plasma Physics (supported under a separate solicitation); and Quantum Information Science." <<more>>

Biodiversity International Research Fellowship

Deadline: rolling

"Bioversity International collaborates with students (MSc and PhD) and working professionals from developed and developing countries to carry out thesis or other research that contributes to our mission to deliver scientific evidence, management practices and policy options to use and safeguard agricultural biodiversity to attain global food and nutrition security. The topic of the research should be aligned with one of Bioversity International's areas of expertise. The objectives of the fellowships are to develop individual capacity in research for development, to contribute to generating and sharing knowledge, to build a network of scientists and institutions within our field of interest and offer employment experience to recent graduates." National Science Foundation Electronics, Photonic, and Magnetic Devices

Deadline: rolling

"The Electronics, Photonics and Magnetic Devices (EPMD) Program supports innovative research on novel devices based on the principles of electronics, optics and photonics, optoelectronics, magnetics, opto- and electromechanics, electromagnetics, and related physical phenomena. EPMD's goal is to advance the frontiers of micro-, nano- and quantum-based devices operating within the electromagnetic spectrum and contributing to a broad range of application domains including information and communications, imaging and sensing, healthcare, Internet of Things, energy, infrastructure, and manufacturing. The program encourages research based on emerging technologies for miniaturization, integration, and energy efficiency as well as novel material-based devices with new functionalities, improved efficiency, flexibility, tunability, wearability, and enhanced reliability." LIBRARY SCIENCE

International Association of Sound and Audiovisual Archives

Deadline: rolling

Membership required "IASA regularly offers financial awards to encourage and support research and publication within the field of audiovisual archiving and preservation.... IASA will support a research project only if there is evidence that the results are within the scope of IASA's purposes. This includes, but is not limited to the care of, access to, and long term preservation of sound and audiovisual heritage including the development of best professional standards and practice for sound and audiovisual heritage."
