Hello, Barnard faculty,

More newsy News this month. See page four for some information on the reopening of federal funding agencies, which are now funded through February 15.

This edition’s featured funder looks at the Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC), which can connect researchers bitten by the travel bug to research centers throughout the world. For Sage Advice we return to Colorado State University’s blog series, “Principles of Effective Grantsmanship.”

This newsletter profiles opportunities coming due mostly in early April, not a flush month, especially for the social sciences. Alternatively, you can download the whole year’s Grants Calendar from the website and sort by due date, discipline, funder, or grant type.

Reminders for deadlines over the next six months can be found beginning on page eight, grouped by discipline.

Upcoming internal grant deadlines are March 8th and March 27th, the last of the academic year. See the Barnard website, here, for more information. If you have colleagues abroad whom you might like to bring to Barnard under the Weiss Fellowships for Visiting International Scholars Program, please see information here.

For assistance in finding grants for an upcoming project or to begin an application process, please contact Kari Steeves or any one of us in Institutional Funding and Sponsored Research. As always, feel free to send us comments, requests, or suggestions here.

Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC)

“Founded in 1981, the Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC) is a private nonprofit federation of independent overseas research centers (ORCs) that promote advanced research, particularly in the humanities and social sciences, with a focus on the conservation and recording of cultural heritage and the understanding and interpretation of modern societies.”

As such it disseminates Fellowships to the ORCs, which makes it a great place for one-stop shopping should you want to travel to any one or more of its member countries or regions. “Funding is awarded from sources including the U.S. Department of State, the U.S. Department of Education, and the Smithsonian Institution, as well as from private foundations and individuals.” The Centers include (with application deadlines in parenthesis):

- American Center for Mongolian Studies (February 15, 2019)
- American Center of Oriental Research in Jordan (February 1, 2019)
- American Institute for Indonesian Studies (January 7, 2019)
- American Institute for Maghrib Studies (January 31, 2019)
- American Institute for Yemeni Studies (February 12, 2019)
- American Institute of Indian Studies (January 7, 2019)
- American Institute of Pakistan Studies (February 1 and 15, 2019)
- American Research Center in Egypt (January 15, 2019)
- American Research Institute of the South Caucasus (January 18, 2019)
- American School of Classical Studies at Athens (January 15 and March 15, 2019)
- Americas Research Network in Mexico (April 1 and June 30, 2019)
- Center for Khmer Studies (February 28, 2019)
- Palestinian American Research Center (January 7, 14, and 16, 2019)
- W.F. Albright Institute of Archaeological Research in Jerusalem (January 15, 2019)
- West African Research Association (February 1, 2019)

See this nifty rollover chart for links to each grant.

CAORC also administers the National Endowment for the Humanities Senior Research Fellowship (January 24, 2019) that “supports advanced research in the humanities for U.S. postdoctoral scholars, and foreign national postdoctoral scholars who have been residents in the U.S. for three or more years. Scholars must carry out research in a country which hosts a participating American overseas research center. Eligible countries for 2018-2019 are: Algeria, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Cambodia, Cyprus, Georgia, Indonesia, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Nepal, Senegal, Sri Lanka or Tunisia.”

The Multi-Country Research Fellowship provides funding for “advanced regional or trans-regional research in the humanities, social sciences, or allied natural sciences for U.S. doctoral candidates and scholars who have already earned their PhD. Preference will be given to candidates examining comparative and/or cross-regional research. Applicants are eligible to apply as individuals or in teams. Scholars must carry out research in two or more countries outside the United States, at least one of which hosts a participating American overseas research center.”
Sage Advice for Competitive Proposals

Colorado State University’s “Principles of Effective Grantsmanship”

In early December we covered two blog posts in a series posted by Colorado State University’s Tricia Callahan, the Senior Research Education and Information Officer. “Finding the Right Opportunity” and “Planning for Success” offered tips on laying the groundwork for a competitive and effective proposal. Callahan’s fifth in the series, “Write and Rewrite,” gets to the core of applying for funding, whether or not it requires the greatest allocation of time. Callahan lays out some “General Rules:”

“Leave plenty of time for review and revision....
Don’t be vague in your language....
Avoid jargon and write in short, clear sentences....
Keep objectives to a minimum....
The novelty or distinctiveness of your project should be clearly explained....
Don’t assume that your proposal’s relevance to the grant program’s goals is self-evident....
Understand your audience....
Understand the reviewer’s challenge....”

If you are curious what I have ellipsed, you can find out here.

In addition to each of these pithy and wise directives, Callahan dissects the different parts of a proposal, beginning with the title, which, she says, should contain a verb (sadly, my title above does not). I suggest that verb not be any form of “to be.”

The abstract, as you know, should be one-stop shopping for your reviewers. Therefore, Callahan suggests you “send your abstract to someone who is not familiar with the specifics of your work and ask if it explains the problem you are addressing, your hypothesis and the evidence to support it, your research plan, how this work is distinctive or novel, your unique qualifications, how the outcomes will benefit science and humanity, and how it serves the grant program’s goals.”

Of “Background, Research Plan, and Outcomes,” Callahan says, “The underlying logic is just as important as the work you plan to do.” “Ask yourself ‘why?’ or ‘so what?’ If your draft doesn’t answer those questions, add further explanation.”

To come up with an airtight budget, “work with your college/departmental proposal support staff in developing a budget that is appropriate to the scope of work proposed [and] in line with sponsor requirements.” That’s us! We await your call.

Don’t forget the biographical sketches/vitae. Here Callahan uses the word, “pedigree.”

If letters of support are requested as part of the proposal, it is of course incumbent on you to line up your recommenders early. It may also be in your best and expedient interest to offer your recommender an outline of some key bullet points you want covered or even a draft of a letter. While not everyone will take you up on the offer, many will appreciate the guidance.

Callahan cautions applicants not to “underestimate the amount of time and effort that will be needed to ensure that you have provided all required attachments and supplementary documents” and gather them early in the process, if possible.

Lastly, each request for proposals is different, so “don’t neglect additional required parts of the application, like an education component or program assessment/evaluation.”

SHUTDOWN NEWS

No doubt you’ve heard that, at least until February 15, federal funding agencies are open.

From the NSF

“After a long and difficult lapse in appropriations, the agency is operating under a three-week continuing resolution. This means we will not be able to conduct “business as usual,” and we will have to set priorities for what to do first. We will start with the most pressing of issues, including processing the backlog of awards to universities and small businesses, rescheduling merit review panels that were cancelled, funding facilities and renewing oversight of those facilities, and funding graduate student and postdoctoral fellowships. In addition, we will advance the bold new agenda for science envisioned by NSF and the National Science Board, an agenda now being formulated in new solicitations. Our hardworking staff will be pressed to do more. We once again ask for your forbearance as we deal with this unprecedented situation. And we welcome good ideas for making rapid progress, whether they come through scientific organizations and societies or from individuals.”

“Unfortunately, the recent lapse in appropriations (lapse) resulted in missed panels, a backlog of proposal actions, and delays that may result in the cancelation of related activities and certain programs. It is fully recognized that it will take time to work through this extensive backlog of activities. The Foundation is establishing processes that will enable us to focus on a specific set of high-priority areas, particularly in light of the three-week CR.

Proposers, awardees and reviewers who have questions are encouraged to await communications from NSF, at least initially, as we resume operations. We appreciate your patience.

PROPOSAL PREPARATION & SUBMISSION

- The issuance of new funding opportunities (program descriptions, announcements or solicitations) and Dear Colleague Letters (DCLs) will resume in the coming days.
- The NSF FastLane system, Grants.gov and Research.gov were available for proposal preparation and submission during the lapse.

The implementation date for the revised NSF Proposal and Award Policies and Procedures Guide (PAPPG) (SF N19-1), which was scheduled to become effective on January 28, 2019, has been delayed. NSF will post a new implementation date on the NSF website as soon as practicable. In the interim, the current version of the PAPPG (NSF 18-1) applies.

Impact on Existing Due Dates

Guidance to the proposer and awardee community was updated on January 25, 2019, to specify that NSF will be extending the deadline date for the solicitations or Dear Colleague Letters (DCLs) listed in the table below. The table has now been updated to include any additional affected solicitations and DCLs, along with the revised deadlines. Deadlines for published program descriptions, announcements, solicitations and DCLs that do not appear on the list below remain unchanged.”

Although this news is obsolete, we want to give props to the NEH for this banner seen on the homepage of their website on January 24:

“NEH REOPENS ON JANUARY 28, 2019

On Monday, January 28, the NEH will return to normal business operations for approximately four weeks. The agency will use FY18 administrative funds in order to end the furlough for staff and contractors. The agency will prioritize the grant review process in order to minimize any interruption in the awarding of federal funding. Reopening now coincides with the critical workload in mid-January through February that is necessary to award the spring grants.”

Grant Opportunities

GENERAL

Independent Research Fund Denmark

Sapere Aude Starting Grant

Deadline: April 9, 2019

"DFF-Starting Grants are targeted at excellent, younger researchers who intend to gather a group of researchers in order to carry out a research project at a high international level. The objective of the grant is to give talented researchers who have earned their PhD within the last eight years an opportunity to develop and strengthen their research ideas. In all cases, a general assessment criterion will be the extent to which the project will benefit Danish research." &lt;more&gt;

Joyce Foundation Grants

Deadline: April 10, 2019

"The Joyce Foundation is a nonpartisan, private charitable foundation that supports evidence-informed policies to improve quality of life, promote safe and healthy communities, and build a just society for the people of the Great Lakes region. Our five program strategies advance five policy areas we see as essential to our mission: Education and Economic Mobility, the Environment, Gun Violence Prevention and Justice Reform, Democracy, and Culture." &lt;more&gt;

Type Investigations Ida B. Wells Fellowship

Deadline: Rolling

"The one-year fellowship helps reporters complete their first substantial work of investigative reporting, by providing a $12,000 award and editorial advice from a dedicated Investigative Fund editor. Fellows will also receive funds to cover travel and other reporting costs, and the costs associated with attending the annual Investigative Reporters and Editors conference. They will enjoy access to research resources, legal assistance, professional mentors and assistance with story placement and publicity."

ARTS AND HUMANITIES

New England Foundation for the Arts (NEFA)
National Dance Project Production Grant
Deadline: March 1, 2019
"NDP Production Grants provide funding to artists/companies to create new dance works and touring subsidies to the U.S. organizations who bring that work to their communities."

Society for Classical Studies
Deadline: March 4, 2019
"Open to both collegiate and pre-collegiate teachers of classics. SCS membership is not required. Possible projects include, but are not limited to, the following: attendance at a professional conference, purchase of teaching materials, study abroad."

New England Foundation for the Arts (NEFA)
National Theater Production Creation & Touring Grant
Deadline: March 11, 2019
"Creation & Touring Grants provide funds for creation and U.S. touring of artist-led, ensemble, devised projects. These grants are highly competitive and are awarded to approximately eight projects annually."

The American Folklife Center
The Gerald E. and Corinne L. Parsons Fund Award
Deadline: March 12, 2019
"The purpose of the fund is to increase awareness of the ethnographic collections at the Library of Congress and to make the collections of primary ethnographic materials housed anywhere at the Library available to the needs and uses of those in the private sector. Awards may be made either to individuals or to organizations in support of specific projects. Projects may lead to publications in media of all types, both commercial and non-commercial; underwrite new works of art, music, or fiction; involve academic research; contribute to the theoretical development of archival science; explore practical possibilities for processing ethnographic collections in the American Folklife Center archive or elsewhere in the Library of Congress; develop new means of providing reference service; support student work; experiment with conservation techniques; and support ethnographic field research leading to new Library acquisitions."

The American Folklife Center
The Blanton Owen Fund Award
Deadline: March 12, 2019
"The Blanton Owen Fund is offered bi-annually. Applications will be invited again in early 2019. The award was established in 1999 in memory of folklorist Blanton Owen by his family and friends to support ethnographic field research and documentation in the United States, especially by young scholars and documentarians. Currently, this award is offered every other year. Historically the available amount has been about $1000 and is often split between more than one recipient."

The American Folklife Center
The Henry Reed Fund Award
Deadline: March 12, 2019
"The purpose of the fund is to provide small awards to support activities directly involving folk artists, especially when the activities reflect, draw upon, or strengthen the collections of the American Folklife Center. Projects and activities might include: Payments to folk artists, their families, their descendants, or their cultural communities in connection with publication or dissemination of documents (audio recordings,
Grants and Fellowship Opportunities (cont’d)

manuscripts, photographs, etc.) in the American Folklife Center’s collections. Honoraria or reimbursement to folk artists for programs, such as concerts, workshops, or exhibitions, which feature those folk artists and their arts. Programs honoring and celebrating folk artists for their cultural contributions. Support for the costs of documenting distinguished folk artists and the acquisition of resulting documentation by the Library of Congress."

King’s College London Georgian Papers Program Royal Archive Fellowships
Deadline: April 1, 2019
"King’s College London offers the award of a bursary to support original research on the Royal Archives at Windsor Castle for up to a month during the summer. These bursaries are open to all researchers. The Programme is promoting and developing a research programme in support of the digitization of some 350,000 pages of original archives. Fellows will undertake their own research and also be invited by staff of the Georgian Papers Programme to share their insights into the collection and join with fellows from other schemes at a number of events as part of a growing academic cohort."

The Society for Ethnomusicology Nadia and Nicholas Nahumck Fellowship
Deadline: April 1, 2019
"Purpose: To help support research on a dance-related subject and its subsequent publication."

Zone 3 Press Creative Nonfiction Book Awards
Deadline: April 1, 2019
"The competition is open to all authors writing original works in English. Manuscripts that embrace creative nonfiction’s potential by combining lyric exposition, researched reflection, travel dialogues, or creative criticism are encouraged. Memoir, personal narrative, essay collections, and literary nonfiction are also invited."

Oxford American Jeff Baskin Writers Fellow
Deadline: April 8, 2019
"The Terra Foundation for American Art actively supports projects that encourage international scholarship on American art topics, as well as scholarly projects with focused theses that further research of American art in an international context. Academic program funding is available for in-person exchanges such as workshops, symposia, and colloquia that advance scholarship in the field of American art (circa 1500–1980) that take place in the United States and examine American art within an international context, with at least half of the participants coming from outside the United States. Additionally, the foundation welcomes applications for international research groups."

National Endowment for the Humanities Mellon Fellowships for Digital Publication
Deadline: May 10, 2019
"Fellowships support individuals pursuing advanced research that is of value to humanities scholars, general audiences, or both. Recipients usually produce articles, monographs, books, digital materials, archaeological site reports, translations, editions, or other scholarly resources in the humanities."

National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowships
Deadline: April 10, 2019

that take place over limited periods of time and involve limited geographic areas. Such projects generally are smaller in scale and shorter in duration than those in the Art Works category. All projects must extend the reach of the arts to populations that have limited access to the arts due to geography, ethnicity, economics, or disability. The involvement of experienced artists and arts professionals is essential.”

STEM
(Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics)

New York Stem Cell Foundation
Neuroscience Investigator Awards
Deadline: February 20, 2019

"NYSCF is soliciting applications from early career investigators for Innovator awards in neuroscience. The goal of this initiative is to foster truly bold, innovative scientists with the potential to transform the field of neuroscience. Applicants are encouraged in the fundamental areas of developmental, cellular, cognitive, and translational neuroscience, broadly interpreted. Applicants need not be working in areas related to stem cells."

Human Frontier Science Program
Young Investigator Research Grants
Deadline: March 28, 2019

"The HFSP supports novel, innovative and interdisciplinary basic research focused on the complex mechanisms of living organisms; topics range from molecular and cellular approaches to systems and cognitive neuroscience and the interactions between organisms. A clear emphasis is placed on novel collaborations that bring biologists together with scientists from fields such as physics, mathematics, chemistry, computer science and engineering to focus on problems at the frontier of the life sciences."

McKnight Foundation
Memory and Cognitive Disorders Award
Deadline: March 25, 2019

"We are interested in proposals that address memory or cognition under normal and pathological conditions. This includes proposals that address mechanisms of memory or cognition at the synaptic, cellular, molecular, genetic or behavioral level in animals, including humans. We are particularly interested in proposals that incorporate fundamentally new approaches, as well as those that involve human experimentation. Collaborative and cross-disciplinary applications are encouraged."

National Institutes of Health
R13, U13 Conference Grants and Conference Cooperative Agreements
Deadline: April 12, 2019

"The NIH ICs each have different scientific missions, as well as program goals and initiatives that evolve over time. In order to promote the most efficient use of NIH funds towards meeting the mission and program goals of the ICs, each conference grant application is required to contain a permission-to-submit letter from one of the participating ICs (see IC Contact and Special Interests website). Applicants are urged to initiate contact well in advance of the chosen application receipt date and no later than 6 weeks before that date. Applicants should inquire about IC-specific program priorities and policies in regards to conference grants. Please note that agreement to accept an application does not guarantee funding."

American Chemical Society
Community Recognition Grants
Deadline: Rolling

"The American Chemical Society recognizes activities at the community level and provides grants to support programs that advance the public’s understanding of chemistry."

Deadline Reminders

Below are grants that are, or are expected to be, due in the next six months. For a list of grant deadlines for the whole year, please see our Grants Calendar on the Barnard website.
